Preface.

1896-97.

Directory Publishers, like all the rest of the world, are largely influenced by selfish considerations. They do not select their field of operations at hap-hazard and trust blindly to a kind Providence to see them successfully through their undertaking; nor do they allow any sentimental consideration to warp their judgment and draw them to barren fields. With their long years of experience in different cities and fields of operations, they acquire the faculty of correctly estimating the present status and future prospects of a city and govern themselves accordingly.

The publishers of this volume recognize the fact that it does not mean simply the compiling and issuing of a book, but a farewell flight to other pastures, but it means the expenditure of thousands of dollars in time and labor and expense for all the years to come, as each successive volume is issued. This being the case, the question of choice of cities as the scene of their labors becomes an all-important one, as a mistake in estimating the prospects for the future growth of their chosen city would be costly indeed.

In issuing their first volume of what they expect to be a long series of valuable volumes, the publishers wish to say that every day of their stay has made them prouder of their connection with such a city, and they shall do all in their power to be of use in her future career. To this end they have used all the care that long years of experience could suggest to make the book complete and reliable, since no one better knows how worse than useless is an unreliable Directory. The idea that a single canvass of a city's all that is required, is far short of the truth. Every street and alley and house must be gone over and over again, to trace up and confirm every name, as well as to get changes and removals, either actual or in contemplation. The publishers are here to stay by the city, and fully understanding that their future success depends largely upon how accurate they get their books, therefore they have spared no time nor expense to make it as accurate and complete as possible.

An exhaustive canvass has been made of the city of Belleville and a careful census taken, and we find that the city has a population on Nov. 11, 1895, of 18,471. These figures are from actual count and are reliable. With the already large manufacturing interests established in Belleville, and the constant advent of new business enterprises, we bespeak for this city a healthy and prosperous growth, and believe that within the next few years it will double its present population.

In conclusion we desire to thank our many patrons for the very liberal support they have given us, and trust that the result of our efforts will meet with their approval and appreciation. Regardless of a restless and growing community, we have used every precaution to issue a valuable and complete work.

Very Respectfully,

HARDIE & SCHARLE.

STREET AND AVENUE GUIDE.

The streets of the City of Belleville are numbered on the Philadelphia plan (i.e. every block commences with a new hundred), using Main Street as the base line for all streets running north and south, and Illinois Street as the base line for all streets running east and west.

The letter "x" denotes the cross streets.

DAILY AND WEEKLY GERMAN

BELLEVILLE

Post and Zeitung.

GEO. SEMMELROTH, Publisher.

115 South Illinois Street, Belleville, Ill.

THE LARGEST CIRCULATION

Of any German newspaper in the State outside of the City of Chicago. We have recently added the subscription lists of the Sued-Illinois Zeitung, of Carlyle, Ill., to our mail list, which has given us another increase.

THE POST AND ZEITUNG

Circulates largely among the farmers of Southern Illinois and St. Clair County, which is the fourth largest and one of the wealthiest Counties in the State. Its inhabitants are a very industrious class of people, mostly Germans, whom every advertiser is anxious to reach.

Rates Furnished Upon Application.

DAILY—Published every day except Sunday.

WEEKLY—Published every Thursday. Copy for Advertisements must be handed in by Wednesday, 1 p. m., to insure insertion.
